Critical Issues in American and Asian Education

Educational systems grow from cultural expectations and ideologies. American and Asian educational systems are as vastly different as the cultures they spring from and are reflective of the strengths and weaknesses of those cultures. By learning more about similarities and differences between cultures, educators will be better prepared to deal with an increasingly diverse classroom. Strengths of Asian education are accentuated by similar areas of weakness in American education. There will be a discussion of educational issues of the two cultures with a focus on the impact on students' creativity.
